An interactive online research conference for leaders of industry, local and non-governmental organisations, associations and students.

Young sustainability champions will present successful projects and initiatives in their companies to reduce climate change impact and will show the contribution of they and their company's other young talents have made to these projects.

Practising managers and students will have the opportunity to look at entry level jobs and career options for young talent in these companies and challenge and explore whether young talent can really be Part of the Solution in your company. A participant survey throughout the conference will encourage young talent to take responsibility for choosing a career which actively supports climate change solutions.

Results from each conference in the series will contribute to an ongoing survey by the EIL which will report in December.
